A PARENT TALKS ABOUT THE BENEFITS OF SYLVAN INSTRUCTION.

hen our son began falling behind in school, we immediately sought extra help. Sylvan Learning Center® was an excellent choice. They traced the problem to a weakness in reading, and helped him correct it through a series of lessons he thoroughly enjoyed.

He's reading everything in sight now-newspapers, magazines, you name it. He's doing his homework without being told to. Best of all, he's enthusiastic, happy, sure of himself. We're truly grateful to Sylvan, and would recommend them to anyone."

Mrs. Kathy Parker with son Keith, a Sylvan reading student in Atlanta, Georgia.

How Sylvan Learning Center can help.

If your child is bringing home poor grades or struggling to keep up with school, Sylvan Learning Center can help. We specialize in providing supplemental instruction in reading and math, the basic skills most often lacking when learning problems arise.

Through our unique combination of methods, materials and oldfashioned encouragement, we've helped thousands of youngsters achieve dramatic improvement in essential learning areas.

The first step: A proper diagnosis.

At Sylvan, we begin with diagnostic tests to determine the exact level at which your child is currently reading or solving math problems.

We then start your child's

"He's reading everything in sight now-newspapers, magazines, you name it."

> individualized program with what he already knows. That way, he experiences success—and confidence—from the very start.

Individualized instruction and personal attention.

Your child will learn at his own pace, in a program designed to accommodate his own special needs. He'll have the finest materials at his disposal, including state-of-the-art computer programs and personal workbooks.

There are never more than three students to a teacher at Sylvan, so your child will have all the attention and guidance he needs. Since few things are as important to your child's progress as enthusiastic support and positive reinforcement, we take every opportunity to praise your child's efforts and reward his accomplishments.

The result? We're so confident your child will improve academically, we actually guarantee improvement.

Of course, the benefits of Sylvan don't end with academic improvement. Many students experience a boost in self-esteem that often carries into home and social life, too.

The Sylvan Guarantee

When enrolled in our basic reading or math program, your child will improve at least one full grade equivalent score after the first 36 hours of instruction, or we will provide up to 12 additional hours of instruction, at no further cost.

Measurement will be based on norms from a nationally standardized achievement test for improvement in either reading (comprehension or vocabulary) or math (computation or application).

MESSAGE FROM THE ## EDITOR

This spring when we looked at the list of programs ready to air in the summer and those coming along for fall, we realized we had a lot to be excited about. That excitement sparked the idea for Super Debut Weekend: a special opportunity to share The Disney Channel's new and upcoming programming with everyone else.

First of all, Super Debut Weekend, Saturday, June 4 through Sunday, June 5, celebrates the premiere presentations of several programs we're proud of. One of them, airing live from Radio City Music Hall, is A Prairie Home Companion:The 2nd Annual Farewell Performance with Garrison Keillor. There's also the world television premiere of The Night Train to Kathmandu, our most recent Disney Channel Premiere Film. Other weekend highlights are Shirley Temple's Little Miss Broadway, in color for the first time, and Astaire Time, a preview of a Disney Channel tribute to the debonaire dancer—called Hats Off to Fred Astaire—to be shown in full this fall.

Just as important as the weekend's premieres, however, are the special previews—glimpses of movies, specials, and series to come. These preview spots will appear in between programs and as a special preview show starring Harry Anderson. Disney Channel camera crews bring behind-the-scenes footage of programs in the making from around the world, from a Jean Shepherd comedy filming in Texas—Ollie Hopnoodle's Haven of Bliss—to a new Disney Channel drama about families caught up in the perils of the annexation of Austria by the Nazis. The film stars Ed Asner and Jane Alexander.

There's news of New Vaudevillians III, also starring Harry Anderson; The Lawrenceville Stories, a three-part miniseries about a boys' prep school; The National Children's Safety Test, with easy-to-practice steps that will keep our children safe; plus a special featuring the funniest kids in America. There will be a unique music special starring the singing/songwriting duo, Ashford and Simpson; and for the younger set, Raffi returns with a new children's concert—Raffi II.

The biggest event of all, however, is our plan for a new Mickey Mouse Club series, to air each weekday afternoon, starting in the fall. The 1988 version is designed to have the same scope and quality as the original TV series in the '50s, but to speak to the interests and humor of today's children. And you'll also see footage from the auditions for Why?...Because We Like You, a movie about the making of the original Mickey Mouse Club, which will also air in the fall.

Speaking of the mouse, this year The Walt Disney Company is celebrating Mickey Mouse's 60th birthday. We're honoring Mickey in all sorts of ways, including a not-so-traditional birthday party at Walt Disney World on the honored date—November 18.

The first in a series of Disney Channel tributes to Mickey Mouse is this magazine's comical Read, Write and Draw story (page 44) about a birthday present from Minnie gone awry. We anticipate sacks of mail containing entertaining endings to the wild beginning. As the time draws closer to the actual date of Mickey's birthday, The Disney Channel will honor the international hero in a variety of other ways, including two new specials.

When planning ahead we're mindful of our Disney heritage, but as you'll see on Super Debut Weekend, we're also eager to seize the exciting new opportunities for television now and into the 1990s. That's our challenge and our fun.

DISNEY BEAT

Powers stretches her wings

ne of actress Stefanie Powers's early film appearances was in the Disney comedy The Boatniks (please turn to page 33). In addition to her now lengthy acting laurels, Powers has been acclaimed for her involvement in wildlife conservation and management in the African nation of Kenva. That background was helpful in her most recent dramatic role. Powers portrayed aviatrix Beryl Markham in the CBS miniseries Shadow on the Sun. Markham was the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic from Europe to North America. Raised in Kenya, Markham was also the author of a powerful and moving autobiography, West with the Night. Powers found playing Markham an irresistible opportunity.

"The women aviators of the '30s were amazing," Powers explains. "Beryl was a real individualist. She did all kinds of things long before it was acceptable for women to do them. We collected much of the information on her from people who knew her personally."

Stefanie Powers William Hickey

Acting coach to the stars

The Disney Channel Discovery film Starlight: A Musical Movie (see page 36) features actor William Hickey. Hickey was a relative unknown until John Huston's film Prizzi's Honor brought him an Oscar nomination for Best Supporting Actor. (He played Don Corado Prizzi in the movie.) Up to that point, Hickey was renowned as the acting coach to the stars. His past pupils included Barbra Streisand (who he doesn't remember), Steve McQueen, George Segal, and the late Geraldine Fitzgerald. Of course, Hickey was never just a teacher: he also appeared in such Broadway musicals as Guys and Dolls and Bells Are Ringing. Ever modest, Hickey downplays his Broadway experience.

"I begged my way into all those shows," he insists. "I remember trying to get into the chorus of a show that Lehman Engel was directing. He watched me going through my paces and told me 'You can't sing or dance well enough to be in the chorus. You'll have to be a principal [actor].""

Candy's comedy recipe

Making a cameo appearance as a gas station attendant in Kavik, the Wolf Dog (turn to page 35) is comic actor John Candy (Planes, Trains and Automobiles; Splash). The rotund Candy—"I've been described as a poor man's Charles Laughton," he quips—honed his sardonic style as a founding member of the Second City Television troupe. (Dan Aykroyd was another founding member of the group.) Candy recently explained his patented approach to comedy:

"It's a personal thing. It's dressing up an old joke and making it look new. Hopefully, a large number of people will share the joke. That's your goal. There are always going to be people who don't find it funny. Unfortunately, sometimes they're the people you work with."

John Candy

Ronny Cox

Who is that guy?

Starring in Kavik, the Wolf Dog is character actor Ronny Cox. Subscribers will recognize Cox as the police captain harassed by Eddie Murphy in Beverly Hills Cop (I and II). He also portrayed the evil security executive in last summer's hit, RoboCop. Cox is the epitome of the classic Hollywood character actor: you recognize the face, even if you can't recall the name. That doesn't bother Cox in the least.

"For years I would go to meet someone who had asked to see me about a part in a movie, and the person wouldn't recognize me," he says. "There are a number of actors like that, but the one whose career I would most like to emulate is Robert Duvall's. He did the same kind of things [character roles] for years. It wasn't until people started to put the body of his work together that they realized who he was."

Star clout or lack of

Despite his acclaim as both an actor's actor and a gifted director—plus an Academy Award for Best Actor in Tender Mercies, which he also coproduced—Robert Duvall insists that star clout in Hollywood still eludes him. (Look for Duvall in a meaty character performance in True Grit—see page 32.) In a recent interview with

Premiere magazine, Duvall made a trenchant observation on the business side of the movie industry:

"I have the same problem everybody does: it's hard to get projects off the ground. Maybe if I were at a higher level in some respects—like my movies did better at the box office—then they'd [studio executives] give me the money to do a film."

Robert Duvall

Madeline Kahn

The bad and the beautiful

ne of the stars lending their voices to the animated film My Little Pony is Madeline Kahn (turn to page 33). The gifted comedienne's breakthrough screen role came with Peter Bogdanovich's 1972 madcap comedy What's Up, Doc, which starred Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal. Kahn played a shrew whose nagging drove away O'Neal's character.

"It was very depressing," she explains. "The part was good, but so unflattering. Why, of all the people in the world, did they choose me to be the one who Ryan O'Neal runs from?" Still, Kahn has come to look at the bright side of her performance: "I can look back now," she trills, "and see that someone who is nagging and shrewish should be played by someone who is a-dor-able!"

ARCHIVES

Dave Smith, The Walt Disney Company archivist, answers questions about the company's history and its film productions.

My wife and I need your help in settling a small wager. We cannot agree on who did the voice of Jake the cat in The Cat From Outer Space. My wife claims it's Paul Lynde; I disagree. Who's right?

-T.P., Hastings, NE

Ronnie Schell provided the voice for Jake. Schell has had roles in other Disney films, including that of Joe Barnsdale in Gus.

Did Walt Disney personally design any of the attractions at Disneyland?

-A.L., Antioch, CA

Until his death in 1966. Walt Disney was highly involved in creating all of the attractions that were built at Disneyland. He spent more time on some attractions than on others. For example, when Walt was planning the Mine Train ride through Nature's Wonderland, he wasn't satisfied with his designers' creations. So Walt took drawing materials home and drew up the entire ride himself. Today, this drawing of Walt's is part of the Archives. (The Mine Train ride has since been replaced by Big Thunder Mountain Railroad.)

In watching Alice in Wonderland, I noticed that in the Walrus and the Carpenter sequence there is a calendar where the "r" in March is highlighted. Why is this?

-D.B., Fairfax, VA

According to an old proverb, oysters should only be eaten in months that have an "r" in their name. (Until the advent of modern harvesting methods, it was common for oysters taken in the summer months to be of poor quality.) The flashing "r" in March was a warning to the baby oysters.

Hearing the news of Mickey Mouse's 60th birthday this year, I was curious: when is Minnie Mouse's birthday?

-J.K., Little Rock, AR

Minnie Mouse made her debut with Mickey Mouse on the exact same date, November 18, 1928, in the cartoon Steamboat Willie. Happy 60th birthday, Minnie!

Which of Walt Disney's movies were the first to be shown on television?

-L.A., Austin, TX

During his first season on television (1954-55), Walt aired three of his theatrical feature films: Treasure Island, and in somewhat shortened versions, Alice in Wonderland and So Dear to My Heart. Turning the tables, the big hit of that TV season—three episodes chronicling the life of Davy Crockett — was later released in theaters as the feature film Davy Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier.

DISNEY CHANNEL TRIVIA

- The Mystery of Edward Sims (see page 30) continues the adventures of cub reporter Gallegher. Roger Mobley stars as Gallegher, as he did in all 12 episodes of the "Gallegher" miniseries, which originally aired on TV between 1965 and 1968.
- The Civil War was a favorite topic for Walt Disney. Besides Johnny Shiloh (see page 38), other Civil War-themed Disney films included Willie and the Yank, (also known as Mosby's Marauders), and The Great Locomotive Chase. Later Civil War-themed films from Disney included High Flying Spy, Menace on the Mountain, and Million Dollar Dixie Deliverance.
- Winston Hibler, who produced The Bears and I (see page 30), is perhaps best known as the narrator of the True-Life Adventures.
- John Denver composed his popular "Sweet Surrender" for The Bears and I.
- In early script versions for Lady and the Tramp (see page 30), Tramp was first called Homer, then Rags, and Bozo. A 1940 script introduced the twin Siamese cats. Eventually known as Si and Am, they were then named Nip and Tuck.
- The pairing of Tim Conway and Don Knotts worked so well in The Apple Dumpling Gang (page 28) that they were teamed in several later Disney films.

Readers who have Disneyrelated questions can write to Dave Smith, c/o The Disney Channel Magazine, 3800 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, CA 91505.

CELEBRATING MICKEY

As part of The Walt Disney Company's tribute to Mickey Mouse's 60th birthday, "Mickey Memorability" cards have been designed for Disney apparel, toys, gifts, and home items, sold in major retail stores across the country. The cards feature reproductions of the original artwork from classic movie posters

The feelings of brotherly love in this new Donald Zolan plate cast a spell over the baby, the boy, and us.

Being with the baby may make the boy feel big and important. He's not just a little child now. He's a big brother. And the baby seems to sense he's in a safe place with a loving person. What shines through the art is that these two are discovering their love for each other. Donald Zolan says the heavenly blue and the pure white in the picture helped him create the spiritual feeling he was looking for.

Donald Zolan's plates on early childhood have made him America's favorite living plate artist. Both of his first two plates have gone upover eight times in value. "Brotherly Love" is the first issue in a new six-plate Donald Zolan series on childhood. Owning it will give you the right, but no obligation, to acquire subsequent plates, and you may return any plate within a year for a full refund.

Each hand-numbered plate will come with its own hand-numbered certificate. Because of the short 19-day firing schedule and the high demand for Donald Zolan first issues, please mail your reservation form promptly.

FAMILIES

Curing the couch potato syndrome

By Jacquelyn Gross

nce a source of humor, the couch potato syndrome, accompanying symptoms of lethargy and passivity, is now considered by many to be an epidemic, with serious consequences for our children. Parents worry especially that their children's TV habits may keep them from becoming readers. But there is a proven way that we, as parents, can make our children's television watching active and stimulating. In the process, we can also help them acquire the intellectual skills and the literary knowledge that will make them better readers. The cure requires you to do two things:

- First, seize upon opportunities to get your children to think and talk about the program they are watching.
  - Second, encourage them to enact or elaborate upon interesting aspects of the program.

The adventure series Swiss Family Robinson, Mondays at 8:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT), is a perfect vehicle for making your children's television viewing more active and fun. Here are some activities you might consider trying in conjunction with that program:

- 1. Ask your children to remind other members of the family what happened in previous episodes.
- 2. Get a discussion going at the dinner table about specific characters. You might want to talk about the differences between Fred Robinson and the young savage Tio, for example.
- 3. Get your children to predict what will happen in upcoming scenes or episodes. (Have them write their predictions on a piece of paper to show upon conclusion of the episode.)

TV can be used to stimulate your child's imagination

- 4. Have a family storywriting session. Make your own family the castaways and create your own adventures.
- 5. Suggest that your children play at being marooned. Spark their imaginations by scavenging for a large appliance box to turn into a shelter, as well as odds and ends of old clothing to dress up in.
- 6. Encourage them in activities similar to the Robinsons'.

such as making candles, or if you're near the sea or brackish water, making salt.

Keep in mind that whatever you do to stimulate your children to respond to a television program will eventually have a payoff in their response to reading.

Jacquelyn Gross, Ed.D., is a reading specialist, a doctor of Education, and author of Make Your Child a Lifelong Reader.

When parents care too much about their child's choice of friends

By Barbara Bronson Gray

What follows is the final installment of our four-part series on early friendships.

hildren have a natural ability to make friends at an early age, but sometimes parents don't particularly like or approve of the kids their children are attracted to. More and more, psychologists are seeing parents encourage their children to spend time with friends whose fathers or mothers are appealing to the parents for social or even potential business reasons.

Laurie Tucker, a clinical child psychologist, says, "A parent has to ask herself why she likes a certain child. Does the relationship enhance the child's growth?"

Carollee Howes, a professor and developmental psychologist at the University of California, Los Angeles, feels "parents should respect a child's choice of friends, even if the chosen friend is not the parent's idea of an ideal playmate."

Of course, it's easier for parents to deal with the intimacies of dropping off, picking up, feeding, and escorting kids when they like the friend's parents, but that shouldn't be the criterion. "It's been my experience that I've made some really good adult friends through my child," says Howes. "One in particular I probably never would have chosen on my own. But now we're good friends." It doesn't hurt to let the child take the lead.

Just as uncomfortable for parents can be the friendship that is fizzling out. What do you do when your child suddenly doesn't want to play with the friend he has played with daily for the last three months?

First, it's a good idea to check out the change of heart. Make sure something didn't happen at the friend's house that made the child uncomfortable. But don't assume the worst, either. Children change, and the friend who excites a child's interest at age four may not be the right person for him at age four and a half. And remember, children don't have to like everyone.

Just one of the things he'll discover when he meets Dr. Seuss and His Friends.

Discovering noses can lead your baby to discovering words.

In The Nose Book, Al Perkins makes the world of reading come alive with noses. Elephant noses. Alligator noses. Blue, pink and red noses. He captures your child's imagination with rhymes and bright colorful pictures.

Soon your child will repeat words and point to characters. He'll develop important language skills that can give him a head start in reading. And in life.

Have children, will travel

By Barbara Bronson Gray

W hile some days it may seem that even the neighborhood supermarket is too far to take your offspring, under other circumstances, children actually travel well. And with a little helpful preparation and planning, traveling with children can be interesting and fun.

There are a number of simple things parents can do to help make traveling easier on the whole family, according to Ann Gambrell, a Southern California-based consultant specializing in organization and time management—and an experienced mother.

If traveling by air, Gambrell suggests parents call the airline a few days before departure to request special childrens' meals (hot dogs usually go over better than do cold quiche and green vegetables).

Some airlines can make available a special luggage cart designed to also accommodate a child, she says.

Preselect seats with care; would an aisle spot or a window view better meet your needs? If you want extra space—for changing diapers, for example—request a seat with extra leg room, usually located in the first row of the coach section.

Gambrell also advises that parents encourage their children to check out the facilities, including the toilet and the water faucets. Sneak a peek at the minikitchens and the cockpit, if possible, so that questions can be answered before takeoff. Be sure to take the early boarding option if it is offered.

Probably the biggest threat to a parent's composure during a long trip is the child's need for diversion and stimulation. Parents should consider packing a special bag for their children that includes snacks, sundries, simple and never-before-seen dime-store-quality toys, paper, crayons, and even a small tape recorder with a few tapes.

Packing for children is an art, says Gambrell, who cautions that parents actually walk a mile with the luggage they take along. She advises that children can usually get by with a minimum of clothes and accessories, especially if you bring clothes that you mix and match. And even preschoolers can manage their own, albeit small, backpack.

School-age children may get bored without having a triprelated purpose or assignment, says Gambrell, who has found great success in putting her son in charge of keeping "the official record" of the trip. His notations on everything from his sister's crabbing to the changes in visiting a historical site or a special museum may enhance an educational experience with material that is far more tangible and exciting than a textbook or a classroom lecture.

If traveling by car, parents should consider making regular stops at parks along the way, encouraging the entire family to swing, slide, jump rope, stretch, and enjoy the fresh air.

Dr. Peter Katona, a physician who specializes in infectious diseases and a founder of the Center for Infectious Disease in Encino, California, offers some specific advice for promoting health and safety while traveling.

He advises that when traveling in airplanes, children should be restrained in car seats made effect of changes in pressure.

Children under the age of 5 or 6 may not be fully immunized yet, says Katona, so parents should keep their children away from large numbers of children, especially in the less developed countries.

"Yet kids have a remarkable ability to tolerate most things," Katona adds. He encourages parents to take their children traveling, as long as the children are at least a few months old. (Newborns have immature immune systems and their less-developed lungs may have difficulty tolerating the lower oxygen concentrations available at high altitudes, even in pressurized airplanes.)

Diarrheal disorders are easily caught by young children, so precautions such as boiling water and avoiding uncooked food are important. If purchasing formula, Katona suggests parents purchase canned formulas, preferably those made in Western countries.

Probably the biggest fear for most parents is that their child will need medical attention while traveling. If overseas, parents can contact the nearest American Embassy; the Marine guard will have referrals. Before the trip, parents can also write to or call the International Association for Medical Assistance to Travelers (IAMAT), 417 Center St., Lewistown, NY, 14092, (714) 754-4883 for a list of physicians in 500 cities in 150 countries who will provide an office visit for $20 and a hotel visit for $30.

There's no doubt about it traveling with children involves a certain amount of planning, hauling, and soothing. But for children, trips open doors to the joy of learning and to the excitement and size of the real world. Traveling provides experiences they will never forget.

weather have made great reading after returning home.

Kids also love to collect everything from postcards to hotel stationery. Gambrell suggests packing some manila envelopes to help organize children's new treasures.

Children like to take an active part in choosing places to visit on a trip, and usually enjoy perusing the numerous brochures available ahead of departure. Parents can ask their children's teachers about the next semester's curriculum; after 1981; earlier models are not as effective in airplane seats. For a parent who is holding a child in his or her lap, Katona suggests that the seat belt be placed just around the adult only, not around both child and adult, because the seat belt can cause injury to the child by squeezing him or her.

The rapid pressure changes inherent in taking off and landing are better tolerated by a baby if he is sucking on bottle or breast. For an older child (or adult), chewing gum eases the

The 2nd Annual Farewell Performance with Host Garrison Keillor

t would have been strange not to have done another show," says Garrison Keillor in the soft, deliberate tones that are immediately recognizable to fans of A Prairie Home Companion. That long-running radio variety program—its final 17 shows were also aired on The Disney Channel-came to a close last June. Now, on Saturday, June 4 at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time), The Disney Channel will present the exclusive premiere of Garrison Keillor's A Prairie Home Companion: The 2nd Annual Farewell Performance, live from Radio City Music Hall in New York.

"The show had a really wonderful audience," Keillor continues. "The audience liked to get together as much as they enjoyed the show. It was an occasion for people to join together. Our new show is really a reunion of Keillor's decision to perform a reunion of A Prairie Home Companion was made "last fall, when I came back to America (after a threemonth sojourn in Denmark] and began to settle in to New York." His guests for the performance include such Prairie Home favorites as the Everly Brothers, Leo Kottke, and guitarist Chet Atkins. "I just asked the first bunch of people I thought of," Keillor explains, "It was less of a major decision than deciding where to go for dinner in New York City. I thought of the people I wanted to climb up on stage with."

Keillor sees Radio City Music Hall as the perfect venue for his 2nd Annual Farewell Performance, "I stood up on the stage and brooded about it for five minutes and it felt right to me. Radio City seems whole and compact. It's part of Rockefeller Center, which was built in the era of radio, and like radio itself, its value has lasted."

Of course, the centerpiece of A Prairie Home Companion has always been Keillor's monologue, recounting the week's news in the hamlet of Lake Wobegon, "the little town that formed live on stage without a script, are sharpthe creative process involved.

IE HOME ANION

"If you're telling stories—and not jokes, which are like poems, where every word counts—well, stories have a point. And so you write. The point of writing is to allow you to be free on stage. When you write, you discard a lot of your bad lines, and then you're free to go on stage and talk.

"All of my stories begin with some little detail. Details—facts, overheard conversations—are what get you going. And then you just follow them until they stop.

"The story for June is extremely vague and floating around," Keillor says of his monologue for The 2nd Annual Farewell Performance. "But it seems to have something to do with a community sewage system that this little town [the terms he uses to describe Lake Wobegon] has to install. It's a serious, serious stage in the political history of the town. This little collection of houses is becoming a community. And they're confronting it in the most prosaic sense: where do they put sewage, where does the system go, how much will it cost? It's a political crisis. I don't think I ever talked about a political crisis in this town before."

Keillor's monologues—stories to be exact—have been highly acclaimed, both for his performance in A Prairie Home Companion and for the stories' appearances in print. (Keillor has published two collections of Lake Wobegon tales: Lake Wobegon Days and Leaving Home.)

He is often compared by critics with another American humorist, Mark Twain.

"It's a great honor, of course," Keillor says, "but I don't see the comparison. People compare a great many writers to Mark Twain, because he's the comic writer most highly thought of in American English. When people want to lay a really extravagant compliment on you, that's about the most they can spend." He adds, "If you were to work it up for a college term paper in sophomore English, you'd probably receive a grade of C+."

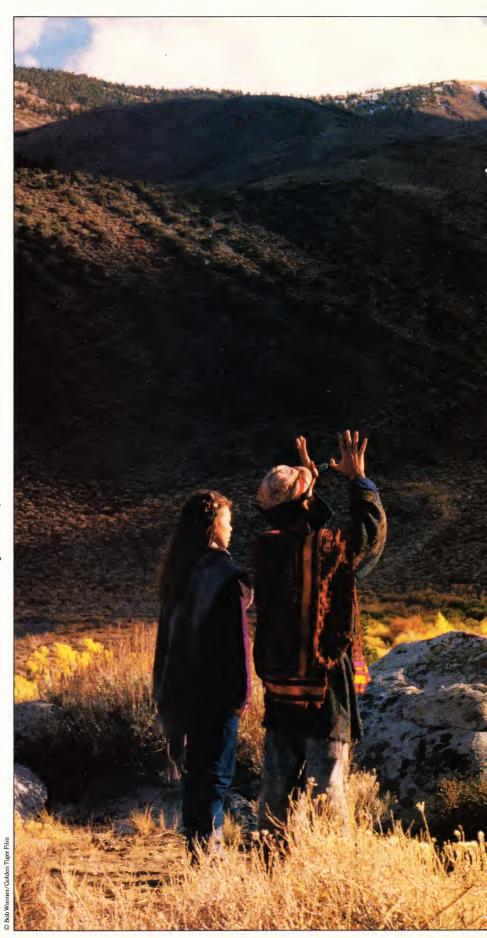

Comparisons of Twain aside, Keillor's return to the airwaves with A Prairie Home Companion: The 2nd Annual Farewell Performance is a signal event. It promises to reprise the wit, humor, music and songs that enshrined the original show as an American classic. But will other "Farewell Performances" follow in years to come?

Keillor observes: "For the third annual show, you'd have to get smart and choose at least one major star to lure the people in. For the 7th and 8th," Keillor chuckles, "you'd have to choose the guest list carefully. The host would be little more than a master of ceremonies. I'd come out in a bathing suit and place a card on an easel to announce the next act."

"The show had a really wonderful audience," says Keillor of A Prairie Home Companion.

The Night Train To Kathmandu

epal's capital—Kathmandu—lies nestled in a valley, surrounded by glacier-topped Himalayan peaks close to 20,000 feet high. Sometimes the valley is lost in a shroud of heavy fog. Other times, when the sun shines through, it glistens in the clear, cool air.

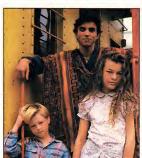

Nepal's culture is a colorful, artistic amalgam of the various peoples who have settled there. But information about the origins of its valley settlements, as well as the neighboring mountainous villages, is scanty. Thus legends abound, and Nepal is as steeped in and obscured by myth as its mountains and valleys are regularly wrapped in veils of mist.

A mysterious legend, albeit fictional, is at the heart of the story of The Night Train to Kathmandu, a Disney Channel Premiere Film starring Pernell Roberts, Milla Jovovich, and Eddie Castrodad. (Premiere date: Sunday, June 5 at 7:00 p.m., EDT/PDT.) It's the tale of an American family from Princeton, New Jersey—the parents are both anthropologists—who spend a semester in Kathmandu on a visiting-professor progam. For the parents, studying this intriguing culture firsthand is a dream come true. For Andrew, their son, age eight, the experience is exciting and adventurous—only the food is yucky. Their teenage daughter Lily, on the other hand, is a reluctant traveler, having not wanted to leave home and her friends in Princeton.

But then Lily (played by Milla Jovovich, age 12, who is currently hailed as the new Brooke Shields) meets young Prince Johar on the train to Kathmandu. As the two become friends, she is drawn into an adventure and an exotic world far beyond anything she could have imagined.

Johar (Eddie Castrodad), Lily learns, has been sent forth from a protected world—the invisible city of Sharloon—"where people have never learned to be dishonest. Not to others. . .not to themselves," Johar tells Lily. The prince is to explore the outside world, working as a humble servant in order to gain worldly knowledge. But Johar must return home within the course of one moon, or he will die and the city will be destroyed. Legend has it that Sharloon becomes visible only twice in each royal generation, so that a prince may enter the world, experience it, then return to his own.

"We all must have a destination, Lily," Johar tells her. "I have mine, and it is one I cannot share. You must find yours." Their lives become entangled, however, as their friendship deepens, and Lily becomes part of Johar's plans and destination.

The legend of the invisible city is of more than passing interest to Lily's parents and their university colleagues. It is of considerable academic debate whether the invisible city is fact or fiction. Further complicating the plot is the obsessive desire of one associate, Professor Hadley-Smythe, to prove the city's existence, even though it is believed that to expose the city to the outside world is to destroy it forever. (Hadley-Smythe is played with appropriate evil intent by Pernell Roberts.)

Robert Wiemer, the film's writer, director and producer, has been fascinated by Nepal for years, ever since he did a series of films there for the United Nations. "India is spiritual but has another face to it—heavy urbanization," Wiemer says. "But Nepal has a certain peace and tranquility. It's very difficult to describe. It's a magical place. I wanted to capture that magic in The Night Train to Kathmandu."

For Milla Jovovich (Lily) and Eddie Castrodad (Johar), Nepal was every bit as magical in real life as it seems on the screen. Milla is quick to describe the land's beauty and the powerful effect it had on her: "In the mornings the fog is down and it's cold," she recalls. "It's like walking in Heaven. Then later the sun shines through and you can stand in one place and see fields of grass beyond the temple and streets of shops. I had this inspiration there," she recounts. "I wanted to dig their fields. I wanted to help the people."

Eddie Castrodad, age 17, saw the country mainly through the eyes of Johar rather than his own. "I thought like a prince," he explains. "I pretended to walk on streets of gold. That was fun because I felt like I owned a lot. But I'm really from Queens," he confesses, "and I don't have anything made of gold. I liked being where Johar was from rather than being on a set in Hollywood. I felt a lot freer to be Johar."

Although much of the excitement and beauty of The Night Train to Kathmandu is its exotic setting, Wiemer, the film's creator, has, from the beginning, cared most about the film's message: "In life there are many choices. And you owe it to yourself and to society to prepare yourself to make the appropriate choices."

There is one scene early in the film that crystallizes the film's message, according to Wiemer. While traveling on the train to Kathmandu, Lily meets a wise man, who asks her if she smells the jasmine. "No," she answers, "I smell the smoke from the engine."

"Ah, well," he responds, "we choose what we wish to choose."

"There is a subordinate message in this

An actress, model and Egyptologist

It is easy to see why Milla is constantly compared with Brooke Shields. At just 12 years of age, still lacking a full complement of second teeth, she has already posed for top fashion photographers, such as Richard Avedon, and has appeared on the covers of fashion magazines all over Europe. Now her popularity has spread to this side of the Atlantic. She appeared on the cover of Mademoiselle in May, and will be featured in numerous other fashion magazines in the months ahead.

Born in Kiev in 1975, she moved to the United States with her parents when she was five. (Her mother was an actress in the Soviet Union, her father a physician.) She considers herself quite American, with one caveat: her strong feeling that her ancestors were Egyptian.

Egyptology has been a consuming interest of Milla's since she was seven years old. Against the school librarian's advice, Milla took out a book on Cleopatra, and she has been hooked on the subject of Egypt ever since. While she believes that modeling and acting are good for her, and she wants to continue with both "for a long time," she also wants to become an Egyptologist. "I want to do something there that scientists have never done," she says, "like find a tomb filled with treasures or a pyramid."

Does she have any ties to the Soviet Union? "No, I left when I was five," she reminds. "And, anyway, the Russians didn't build pyramids."

film," Wiemer adds: "The strength of the human spirit and the good that is there to be tapped. There's an awful lot of cynicism today. For a family audience—even when it's escapist fare—there should be a message. You should end up the richer for it."

THE BEST OF HOLLYWOOD

John Wayne American Icon

since its beginnings, film has possessed the power to raise actors and actresses to near mythic status: that of the star. A star has never been defined by acting range alone. Rather the star is a magnetic presence, a film persona who captivates and holds an audience's imagination. Such an individual was John Wayne, who, through a movie career that spanned 48 years, came to represent an aspect of America itself. His was an idealized image of an earlier American type: the independent, self-reliant man of action. Beginning Monday, June 13 at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific erican type: the independent, self-reliant man of action. June 13 at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time, The Best of Hollywood features a film tribute to this American icon. The Disney Channel's selection of five movies presents Wayne at the height of his career, when he was a top box office attraction. Though one immediately thinks of Wayne as the quint-essential cowboy hero, these films offer a fuller perspective, including not only three top drawer Westerns (Angel and the Badman, El Dorado, and True Grit, for which he won an Academy Award), but also a rousing adventure film set in Africa (Hatari!) and an unusual John Ford drama (The Wings of Eagles). The Best of Hollywood's John Wayne Film Festival is an engaging, entertaining look at an American superstar.

John Wayne was born in Winterset, Iowa, on May 7, 1907. He was christened Marion Michael Morrison, and legend has it that Wayne never legally changed his name. With Wayne's father in poor health and needing a drier climate in which to live, the family soon embarked for California, settling in the small desert hamlet of Palmdale.

Like his father, the young Wayne was a football player, and in 1925 he entered the University of Southern California on a football scholarship. While there, he made a friendship that would last a lifetime: a classmate was one Ward Bond, who would become a fine character actor and fellow member of the John Ford stock company.

During his summer vacations from USC, Wayne worked on the old Fox lot. (This was before the studio was amalgamated with the 20th Century studio into 20th-Century Fox.) It was a fruitful and hectic time at the studio, with "journeymen directors" cranking out silent films. Wayne was a laborer and a propman, and in his job he made an acquaintance who soon became a close friend—a young director named John Ford.

In 1928, at the age of 21, Wayne began appearing in bit parts in Ford's silent films. When he was billed on the credits—and often he wasn't—he was listed as "Duke Morrison." His first break came in 1930, when Ford persuaded fellow director Raoul Walsh that Wayne was suited for the leading role in Walsh's film The Big Trail. From there, Wayne quickly moved into movie serials and "B" Westerns, appearing in some 80 movies in just eight years.

It was success—of a sort. "They could sell five reels of film with me riding a horse," Wayne recalled later in life, "and that was that." Indeed, at one point Wayne was even a singing cowboy, a la Tex Ritter. His career had quickly hit a modest plateau, and there it would have remained, had it not been for Ford.

In 1939, Ford turned his efforts to making a Western—his first since the introduction of talkies. The title of the film was Stagecoach, and single-handedly it both revived the Western genre and catapulted John Wayne to stardom. As the Ringo Kid, Wayne not only demonstrated that he could (Continued on page 21) hold his own against such actors as Thomas Mitchell, John Carradine, and Claire Trevor, but that he was a natural leading man. Stagecoach laid the foundation for Wayne's stardom—and his film image.

The coming of the Second World War further boosted Wayne's career. Though he was eager to see active service, he was rejected for duty. His age (35), the fact that he was the father of four (the oldest child was 10), and physical injuries from his football days weighed against him. But the period also provided him with roles in war films-Flying Tigers, The Fighting Seabees, and John Ford's They Were Expendable—that confirmed his status as a particular type of American hero. Wayne was gruff, stubborn, a man who lived by a strict code of honor, a code that fused duty with personal loyalty. It was an image that reached its apotheosis in his finest war film, The Sands of Iwo Jima, and it was an image that would endure on-screen throughout the remainder of his lengthy career.

Given Wayne's star status and filmic image with audiences, the five movies that comprise The Best of Hollywood's John Wayne Film Festival offer interesting perspectives on the way that image—Wayne's persona was developed, modified, and even at times caricatured in the course of his career.

The three Western movies being shown are a case in point. Angel and the Badman (which airs Monday, July 11) showcases Wayne in his specialty role of the Westerner: a tough, capable-and woundedgunslinger who acts according to his individual code of justice and order. It's a part that shares similarities with his earlier role as the Ringo Kid in Stagecoach. Faced with the determined love of a Quaker girl, his character—the personification of the Wild West—yields to the forces of love and civilization. (Angel and the Badman was the first film Wayne produced—and he continued to produce pictures for the rest of his career.)

By 1967, Wayne's film image—particularly in Westerns—was so well established that it verged on cliche. In El Dorado (June 13), Wayne wears his trademarks: the broadbrimmed Stetson, the yellow kerchief about the neck, the battered leather vest. In the hands of a gifted director like Howard Hawks (who, like John Ford, worked often and well with Wayne), Wayne splendidly overplays the role, down to his exaggerated swagger and patented fistfighting style. It's a larger-than-life performance for a witty True Grit (airing June 20) is an out-and-out caricature of Wayne's heroic image. Here the gruff man of action is transformed into a hard-drinking, swearing old U.S. Marshal—one Rooster Cogburn. And Wayne runs full tilt at the part in an extravagant performance that balances his gift for broad physical comedy with the darker side of the role as a frequent killer of badmen. The 1969 film garnered Wayne an Oscar for Best Actor.

By contrast, the two remaining movies in the John Wayne Festival offer portraits of the star in different settings. In Hatari! (which airs June 27) Wayne the persona is transported to Africa. There his rough and ready antics are woven into a tale of capturing animals for zoos. It's a broad, brawling, fun drama-and once again the direction of Howard Hawks dovetails with Wavne's talents.

In The Wings of Eagles, Wayne is in the hands of director John Ford. (Wayne was the most vital of the leading men in the Ford stock company, a band which also included Henry Fonda and James Stewart.) The film is somewhat uneven—the first half is broad comedy played with slapstick zest; the second is a steadily darkening drama. Yet Wayne in both halves is fine indeed, bringing both the madcap antics of a daring pilot to life while beautifully illustrating the character's darker traits.

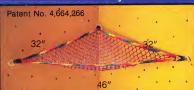

The Best of Hollywood's film tribute to John Wayne is a portrait of a true Hollywood star. Up until his final film performance, in 1976's moving Western The Shootist (Wayne, mortally stricken with cancer, portrays a legendary gunfighter in the same predicament), John Wayne possessed the power to move filmgoers. He represented an enduring, ideal image.

"I never played a character," John Wayne once said. "I always played John Wayne. And I've done all right in my career." Indeed he did, for Wayne appeared in some of the finest American films ever made. His film persona—an extension of John Wayne the man—may be the ultimate example of what defines star quality. \

- ► Mr. Rossi Looks for Happiness (page 35)
- ► The Chipmunk Adventure (page 34)

A Kaleidoscope Concert

Gary Lapow is the sparkling performer for this fifth in a series of musical shows popular with young children (page 32).

For older kids

The Edison Twins

Tom and Annie Edison crack a troubling mystery, every weekday at 4:00 p.m.

KidScene

Weekdays at 5:00 p.m., with Kids Incorporated, Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Videopolis

Guest performers, today's top videos, and much more, every weekday afternoon at 5:30 p.m.

A FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION

SWEET LAND OF LIBERTY

The land of the free

As a tribute to the land that we love, The Disney Channel airs a selection of programs celebrating the Fourth of July: a documentary, an animated special, humor, and drama.

Sweet Land of Liberty

A salute to the Statue of Liberty, from original construction in 1886 to her lavish 100th birthday, is the focus of this visual documentary about America created by Kodak (page 37).

My Friend Liberty

Children will particularly enjoy this claymation special about a 10-year-old boy's fantastical tour of New York and surprise meeting with his immigrant grandparents as they arrive on Ellis Island (page 37).

Jean Shepherd's The Great American Fourth of July and Other Disasters

This nostalgic and highly comic look at small-town America during the 1940s and '50s stars Matt Dillon as the teenage hero Ralph (page 34).

Mouseterpiece Theatre: Ben and Me

Amos the mouse tells his own story of Ben—Ben Franklin, that is (page 37).

America at the Olympics

Bud Greenspan's footage and interviews tell a patriotic story of American competitors, from the first contestants in Rome in 1896 to those who competed in the 1984 Olympics held in Los Angeles (page 32).

Babar Comes to America

This charming special gives a view of America as seen by foreigners, in this case, by elephant King Babar and his family as they tour the country (page 37).

FAMILY FARE

BLACK BEAUTY

A series and a miniseries for family members of all ages

Swiss Family Robinson

This classic tale of a shipwrecked family's struggle to survive continues Monday evenings at 8:00 p.m.

Black Beauty

The much-loved story of the life of a horse and his various owners is told in the form of a five-part miniseries, Tuesdays at 8:00 p.m., beginning June 14.

Weekend Family Theater

Every Friday and Saturday at 7:00 p.m., The Disney Channel schedules movies the whole family can enjoy together. Below is a sampling of what's coming up:

- ► The Apple Dumpling Gang page 28)
- ► The Bears and I (page 30)
- ► The Beniker Gang (page 32)
- ► The Boatniks (page 33)
- ➤ The Night Train to Kathmandu (A Disney Channel Premiere Film, page 28)
- Starlight: A Musical Movie (A Disney Channel Discovery, page 36)

AN OLYMPIC YEAR ON THE DISNEY CHANNEL

Bud Greenspan Olympic films

Emmy award-winning filmmaker and sports historian Bud Greenspan has produced a variety of films about the human drama of Olympic competition. What follows are those films to be shown in June and July. Others will air in the months ahead, including the official film of the 1988 Winter Olympics, premiering in March 1989.

Bud Greenspan's Summer Olympic Greats (Part II)

This is the second of four half-hour specials profiling extraordinary Summer Olympic athletes and their Olympic performances (page 36).

America at the Olympics

The reminiscences of Olympic gold-medal winners as they return to the sites of their Olympic victories makes for a stirring two-hour documentary, which spans the history of the games, including fresh recollections of the 1984 Summer Olympics (page 32).

Two great Olympic stories

The Jesse Owens Story (Parts I & II)

Dorian Harewood plays Jesse Owens in a biographical drama about Owens's life as well as his athletic victories (page 28).

Nadia

Determination and self-sacrifice dominate the story of the young Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci at the 1976 Olympic Games (page 37).

DISNEY NIGHT TIME

Sunday Night Showcase

STEVE ALLEN'S GOLDEN AGE OF COMEDY

Specials, documentaries and classic television

A wide variety of intriguing programs make up Sunday Night Showcase, at 9:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT), from a Fred Astaire TV special that hasn't been seen for 25 years to a dramatic Ernest Hemingway story about a young soldier after World War I.

Astaire Time

As part of Super Debut Weekend, this onehour special (page 29) is a preview of Hats Off to Fred Astaire, a special salute to the legendary dancer to be shown in the fall.

Steve Allen's Golden Age of Comedy

This compilation show of some of the most hilarious moments of early television comedy headlines great personalities such as Abbott and Costello (page 30).

Elvis: Aloha From Hawaii

The King of Rock 'n' Roll performs in one of his most celebrated concerts (page 33).

Soldier's Home

This film version of the classic story written by Ernest Hemingway brings some of America's literary heritage to Sunday Night Showcase (page 36).

Charlie Smith and the Fritter Tree

Brought to America as a slave in the 1850s, Charlie Smith later became a cowboy, an outlaw with Jesse James, a bounty hunter, and perhaps the greatest feat of all, he lived to be 134 (page 39).

GHITIME

The Best of Hollywood

TRUE GRIT

John Wayne Festival

The Best of Hollywood's John Wayne Film Festival is an entertaining tribute to a true Hollywood star, every Monday at 9:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT), beginning June 13. The five films showcase the various facets of his heroic image.

El Dorado

Wayne helps the sheriff (Robert Mitchum) quell a range war in this delightful mix of comedy and action (page 31).

True Grit

As Rooster Cogburn, Wayne teams up with Kim Darby to avenge the murder of her father (page 32).

Hatari!

Produced in East Africa, this adventure features Wayne as a game hunter (page 35).

The Wings of Eagles

Wayne portrays Frank Wead, a WWI aviator turned screenwriter. Ward Bond does an amusing spoof of Director John Ford (page 36).

Angel and the Badman

A tough gunslinger follows his own code of justice until he meets a Quaker girl played by Gail Russell (page 39).

Wartime moviemaking

Going Hollywood: The War Years

This special is an intriguing showcase of films made in response to America's involvement in the war overseas (page 29).

DISNEY CHANNEL DISCOVERY

STARLIGHT: A MUSICAL MOVIE

Music and adventure for the family

Starlight: A Musical Movie (page 36), in the tradition of Fame, features a group of talented kids attending a summer camp for the dramatically inclined.

Another Disney Channel Discovery is Archer (page 37), the tale of a race horse who travels 500 miles across Australia.

FATHER'S DAY

21/2 DADS

Family comedy and sibling drama

To celebrate Father's Day, The Disney Channel features two diverse portraits of American families. 2 1/2 Dads (page 29) is the hilarious story of two dads, five kids and a bachelor who become a family under one roof to beat the rising cost of living. King Crab (page 33) tells the moving story of two brothers, different from each other, who compete for their father's affection.

*Black Beauty is a five-part miniseries airing Tuesday evenings at 8:00 p.m. EDT/PDT), beginning Tuesday, June 14. It's a story the whole family will love.

This weekend, June 4-5, is a special op-

This weekend, June 4-5, is a special opportunity to see The Disney Channel's new and upcoming programs. In addition to the premieres of A Prairie Home Companion: The 2nd Annual Farewell Performance and The Night Train to Kathmandu, there's also a Disney Channel Preview, hosted by Harry Anderson (Night Court). It's a chance to view film clips and previews of upcoming series, specials and movies, such as Why?... Because We Like You (about the creation of the original Mickey Mouse Club), Ollie Hopnoodle's Haven of Bliss, and a new movie starring Ed Asner and Jane Alexander. Among the specials highlighted are New Vaudevillians III, An Olympic Dream, plus a preview of our Disney Channel tribute Hats Off to Fred Astaire. You'll also be able to sneak a look at the new Mickey Mouse Club to air in the fall.

Shirley Temple, George Murphy, and Jimmy Durante star in this musical comedy (in color for the first time) about a girl living in a boarding house that is populated by theater folk. The songs include "Be Optimistic," "If All the World Were Paper," and "Hop, Skip and Jump." (1:20) June 4

An American family of four travels to Nepal as part of a professor-exchange program. The daughter, Lily (Milla Jovovich), is reluctant to make the trip—but when she meets Prince Johar (Eddie Castrodad), who has left his secret city to explore the real world, the two are caught up in an exotic adventure—an adventure in which they must contend with a ruthless and ambitious professor (Pernell Roberts). (1:40) cc

FATHER WAS A FULLBACK

Fred MacMurray, Maureen O'Hara and Natalie Wood star in this delightful comedy that's picture perfect for the family. MacMurray is the beleaguered coach of a football team—but he has as many troubles at home as he does on the playing field. Rudy Vallee and Thelma Ritter costar. (1:24)

June 7, 11, 19; July 1, 13

Sunday Night Showcase ASTAIRE TIME

As part of Super Debut Weekend, Sunday Night Showcase presents Astaire Time, the first in a series of upcoming hour specials starring the dapper and debonaire Astaire. The specials (which haven't been seen on television in almost 30 years) along with a selection of Astaire movies and unique documentaries comprise Hats Off to Fred Astaire—a Disney Channel tribute to the star airing this fall. (1:00) June 5

A PRAIRIE HOME COMPANION: THE 2ND ANNUAL FAREWELL PERFORMANCE

Garrison Keillor returns with his acclaimed variety show, featuring special guests Chet Atkins, the Everly Brothers, and Leo Kottke, plus a new tale from Lake Wobegon, "the little town that time forgot, that the decades cannot improve. . ." This year's annual farewell performance comes to you from Radio City Music Hall in New York City. (2:30) June 4, 12, 22; July 4

The Best of Hollywood
GOING HOLLYWOOD: THE WAR YEARS

Van Johnson narrates this intriguing examination of Hollywood during World War II. The documentary focuses on Hollywood's war movies, their changing messages, and how they compared with the tide of real events. Also included are interviews with the major studio stars of the period as they reflect back on life in the movie capital during wartime. (2:00) June 6

RAGGEDY ANN AND ANDY: A MUSICAL ADVENTURE

This fun-filled adventure is the third in a series of Raggedy Ann and Andy features on The Disney Channel. These popular rag dolls come to life—but only when their owner Marcella is asleep. In this tale Babette, a new doll in Marcella's playroom, is kidnapped by an evil pirate. Raggedy Ann and Andy must venture into the creature-filled woods to find Babette and bring her back to the nursery by dawn. It's adventure and suspense, as these yarn-haired pals race against time to save their friend. Didi Conn and Mark Baker provide the voices for these lovable characters. The Best of Hollywood
TRUE GRIT

The old Duke's never been better than in this Western showdown between the good guys and the bad. John Wayne plays Rooster Cogburn, a one-eyed, crotchety U.S. Marshal who can still shoot straight. He teams up with Kim Darby to avenge the murder of her father. Wayne won an Academy Award for his rousing performance (2:08) June 20, 24, 30

HANSEL AND GRETEL

This classic story of a young boy and girl who wander into the woods and meet up with a wicked witch is a colorful version of the traditional Grimm's fairy tale. Carefully crafted one-third lifesize puppets are the characters in this adventure. (1:23) June 20, 25; July 4, 15

KALEIDOSCOPE CONCERT: GARY LAPOW

This unique performer will delight your family with musical flavors that range from Blue Grass to Salsa. His wonderfully inventive songs deal with such kid's favorites as ice cream eating and witch watching. Soft and witty, Garry Lapow says he loves being a children's musician "for the sheer joy of it." #### PETER LUNDY AND THE MEDICINE HAT STALLION

A broken relationship between a stern father and his son is the backdrop for this rugged frontier saga. When Peter Lundy's (Leif Garrett) father trades away his son's horse, Peter is devastated. He joins the fledgling Pony Express and encounters dangerous Indians and outlaws while he searches for the horse Domingo. (1:40) June 24; July 2, 8

THE BENIKER GANG

Andrew McCarthy leads a group of young orphans who run away and start their own family. This warm drama follows their struggle to stick together and hide from authorities. (1:27) June 24, 28; July 6, 11, 16

AMERICA AT THE OLYMPICS

This special combines exciting footage from past Olympiads and interviews with medalists from the past 70 years. Bob Beamon, Eleanor Holmes, and others return to the sites of their Olympic victories and recount what it felt like to be "for one fleeting moment, the best in the world." (1:50) June 21; July 3, 9, 15

THE BOATNIKS

What happens when a group of Sunday sailors—the amateur boatniks—hit the high seas? Robert Morse plays the ensign who must contend with the nautical antics of Stefanie Powers, Phil Silvers, and Don Ameche. (1:40) June 25, 29; July 3, 8, 14

Sunday Night Showcase ELVIS ALOHA FROM HAWAII

The sunlit panorama of Hawaiian beaches and the rocky remains of volcanic shores set the stage for this celebrated musical special. The King of Rock 'n' Roll dazzles thousands as he spins off a variety of his melodic tunes. Not seen on television since 1973, this musical special takes a nostalgic trip through the '50s and '60s as Elvis sings hits like "Hound Dog," "Burning Love," and "Suspicious Minds." Elvis's rhythmic performance truly captures the sultry intonations of his voice, which left fans in a frenzy for decades. Don't miss this exciting special, set against the beautiful landscape of tropical Hawaii. (1:15)

MY LITTLE PONY

The grand festival in Pony Land is about to begin when Hidea, a wicked witch, attempts to ruin it. She casts a spell that causes the skies to darken and a volcano to erupt, covering Pony land with a purple cloud of smooze. Luckily, three children help out the Ponies before the smooze destroys their magic castle. (1:26)

June 6, 11, 21, 26, 30

KING CRAB

Johnny and Sam are brothers in opposition, vying for their father's affection. One works in the family-run seafood business; the other works for the man who wants to take over the company. It is not until the stress of the family situation leads to their father's heart attack that the brothers come to a peaceful understanding. (1:38) June 8, 19; July 1, 11

MONKEYS GO HOME!

When a young American inherits a neglected olive farm he enlists the help of four playful chimpanzees. (1:30) June 7, 12, 18, 22

The siblings of a mentally retarded boy work to win him a place on the Special Olympics team. (2:00) June 9, 13, 22; July 2

Sunday Night Showcase JEAN SHEPHERD'S GREAT AMERICAN FOURTH OF JULY AND OTHER DISASTERS

Matt Dillon (The Flamingo Kid, Target) stars as a cool-tempered teenage hero, Ralph, who is surrounded by craziness in smalltown America. This humorous film follows Ralph's wild adventures and takes a nostalgic look at the '40s and '50s. The highlight is a high-spirited Fourth of July celebration in Ralph's hometown. Among the bizarre happenings are a strange power blackout that is caused by a high school drum major and a virtuoso fireworks display that blows up a house. James Broderick and Barbara Bolton costar. (0:56) June 26

THE CHIPMUNK ADVENTURE

The Chipettes join up with the Chipmunks for fun and adventure in this animated comedy. While Dave is in Europe, the Chipmunks wander down to the video arcade. There they meet up with Brittany, Jeanette, and Eleanor—and the evil Fursteins, who challenge them to a hot air balloon race. The six are tricked into a diamond smuggling scheme in this world television premiere. (1:16) July 2, 7, 10, 13

Two Comedies With Esther Williams JUPITER'S DARLING

Howard Keel stars as the daring Hannibal advancing on Rome. Esther Williams, "Hollywood's Mermaid," dallies with the passion of the strong Hannibal in order to prevent the attack on Rome—she just happens to be the Roman dictator's fiancee. (1:36) June 10, 16, 26

THE DUCHESS OF IDAHO

In this romantic comedy, Esther Williams packs off to Sun Valley in hopes of patching up her roommate's rocky romance. But this swimming star's life becomes complicated as she is drowned with attention from a bandleader and a playboy. (1:38) June 6, 14, 26; July 7

KING OF THE BEASTS

From the creators of Frosty's Winter Wonderland, this Rankin Bass special takes you into the colorful world of Noah's Ark. After the flood, the animals must find a leader to take them out into the world. It's a race between the elephant and the crocodile, until the lion saves the day. (0:30)

June 6, 14, 22; July 2, 8, 16

The Best of Hollywood HATARI!

Shot on location in Tanganyika (today's Tanzania), Hatari! is an exciting adventure tale about big game hunters (led by John Wayne) who collect animals for the world's zoos. Directed by Howard Hawks; Red Buttons and Hardy Kruger costar.(2:39) June 27; July 2, 7, 14

KAVIK, THE WOLF DOG

This action-packed Canadian film takes you on a grueling tour through the outbacks of Alaska's ice-ridden terrain. Kavik, a North American champion sled dog, is saved from a tragic plane crash by a young boy. After a long period of separation, Kavik makes an agonizing 2,000 mile trip across the frozen wilderness to be reunited with his rightful owner. This exciting film reveals the true nature of a dog's fearless loyalty to man. Ronny Cox (RoboCop), Andrew Ian McMillan, and John Ireland star in this family adventure. John Candy (Planes, Trains and Automobiles; Splash) makes an appearance as a joking gas station attendant. (1:44)

DINOSAURS

Gary Owens, best known for his role as the wacky radio announcer on Laugh-In, hosts this documentary on our prehistoric friends. Through interviews with various experts, this special explores the evolution and habitat of dinosaurs. It's a fascinating look at the prehistoric eras ruled by the "terrible lizards." (0:30)

June 4, 10, 18; July 2, 7, 16

MR. ROSSI LOOKS FOR HAPPINESS

This charming animated film once again features the crazy Italian traveler Mr. Rossi. A magic whistle from a fairy enables him to voyage farther than he has ever imagined—to ancient Egypt, the Stone Age and a fairy-tale world—but he realizes he's happiest back where he started. (1:20)

THE RED BADGE OF COURAGE

This moving drama revolves around the internal struggle of one boy during the Civil War. As his first battle between the Rebels and the Yankees approaches, a young soldier, played by Audie Murphy, tackles the biggest test of his life. This portrayal of courage in the face of war is a John Huston classic. (1:09) June 26

Disney Channel Discovery STARLIGHT: A MUSICAL MOVIE

Until his death, Uncle Monk, a famed vaudevillian, ran Camp Starlight, a performing arts summer camp in the Catskills. Now the camp is being run by Monk's nephew Arthur and Monk's former assistant. As a group of kids settle into Camp Starlight's somewhat run-down facilities, Arthur and the assistant devise separate schemes to sell the camp to a real estate developer—but the budding young stars have a different idea in this charming musical. (1:18) July 9, 14

Sunday Night Showcase SOLDIER'S HOME

This dramatic special is adapted from a short story written by Nobel Prize winner Ernest Hemingway, Richard Backus stars as Krebs, a veteran late in returning from the battlefields of the First World War. Living with his family, Krebs finds it impossible to reconcile himself to civilian life-and neither his fellow town folk or his family seem able to understand his dilemma. Krebs' frustration finally leads to a confession that rocks his family. Nancy Marchand plays Krebs' suffering mother; Mark Lamura is Krebs' embittered boyhood friend. (1:00)

July 3, 8, 14

STAGE STRUCK

A starry-eyed, small town girl (Susan Strasberg) arrives in New York, believing that she has what it takes to become a great actress -no matter what sacrifices are involved. Henry Fonda and Christopher Plummer costar in this film directed by Sidney Lumet, which marked Strasberg's movie debut. (1:35) June 6, 14, 30; July 5, 13

The Best of Hollywood THE WINGS OF EAGLES

John Wayne masterfully portrays Frank W. "Spig" Wead, a pioneer aviator during WWI. After a tragic accident, Wead turns to screenwriting. Commencing with slapstick, this film takes a dramatic turn as Wead's marriage (to Maureen O'Hara) begins to crumble. Ward Bond plays John Dodge, spoofing director John Ford. (1:50) July 4, 10, 16

BUD GREENSPAN'S SUMMER OLYMPIC GREATS (Part II)

In his second special, Bud Greenspan chronicles great moments, events, and athletes of past Summer Olympics. June 7, 11, 25; July 3

A FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION

MY FRIEND LIBERTY

In this dazzling claymation special, 10-year-old Johnny Wise is a bored student—until his dreams take him on a search for the true meaning of liberty. The Statue of Liberty herself leads Johnny on a tour of New York-a tour that also travels into New York history. June 6, 12, 24; July 4, 15

Created by Kodak, this half-hour special is a beautiful and moving montage of the United States. It also includes a special salute to the Statue of Liberty, following Lady Liberty from her construction in 1886 to the magnificent celebration that honored her 100th birthday.

SWEET LAND OF LIBERTY

June 21, 26; July 4, 9

BABAR COMES TO AMERICA

When Babar, King of the Elephants, receives an invitation to visit America, he and his Queen Celeste decide to take two traveling companions: an elderly elephant named Cornelius and their young cousin Arthur. But the excitable Arthur isn't interested in seeing the sights: he wants to go to Hollywood. June 8, 24; July 1, 4, 13

MOUSETERPIECE THEATRE: BEN AND ME

In this Disney animated special, meet the mouse behind the man. In this case the mouse is named Amos, and the man is one Benjamin Franklin of Philadelphia, scientist, printer, editor and writer of Poor Richard's Almanac, and a Founding Father of the United States. But to hear Amos tell it, all of Franklin's best ideas-such as his experiments with electricity—were really Amos's original thoughts. July 4

DTV

A new series of DTV songs have been created and will air between programs day and night. Classic scenes from Disney animation are set to your favorite tunes from the '50s through the '80s. Watch Donald Duck as he romances Daisy in "Heart and Soul"; Chip 'n' Dale dancing in tuxedos in "I Love the Nightlife"; and the jazzy tune, "Pinocchio's Boogy."

Mitzi Gaynor in GOLDEN GIRL

In this Civil War tale, Mitzi Gaynor plays the daughter of a miner forced to entertain the California mining camps. While protecting a shipment of gold, she falls for a Confederate spy who fools her with his amorous proclamations as he plans to steal the cargo. Years later they meet again in New York,(1:48) July 13

The Best of Hollywood ANGEL AND THE BADMAN

John Wayne is an outlawed gunfighter who lives by his own code of justice. After he is wounded in a shootout, he meets a beautiful Quaker woman (Gail Russell). This atmospheric Western comes alive as Russell's humanizing powers convert Wayne from a life of violence to a peaceful and honorable existence. This was the first in a long line of films produced by Wayne. (1:40) July 11

Sunday Night Showcase CHARLIE SMITH AND THE FRITTER TREE

This is the true story of Charlie Smith, who was brought to America on a slave ship in the 1850s, and lived to be 134 years old. This film follows Charlie through fights in the Civil War, his rootin' tootin' days as a cowboy, a short stint as a bounty hunter, and a brief, hilarious moment as a member of Jesse James' outlaws. It is drama that both entertains and informs-and traces the growth of our nation through the eves of one brave man. At its conclusion, the real Charlie Smith comes forward to celebrate his 134th birthday in 1974. Starring Glynn Turman and Richard Dysart (L.A. Law). (1:30)

CHRISTIAN THE LION

Virginia and Bill McKenna, the wildlife experts whose involvement with lions brought us Born Free, have once again created a stunning nature documentary. While visiting Australia, the McKennas discover a lion cub and decide to bring him back to the African wilderness. (1:29)

June 9, 23, 25; July 3, 7

THE KID FROM SPAIN

This lavish musical highlights Eddie Cantor as a young man mistaken for a famed bullfighter. Accused of being the driver of a gangster-filled car, he risks his life in a bullring to prove his innocence. Look for Betty Grable in the chorus line of the musical numbers. (1:36) July 10, 15

THE DEERSLAYER

Hawkeye, the fearless frontiersman, sets out to avenge the murder of his Indian friend's son by the Hurons—who have also kidnapped a Mohican princess. Their search pulls them deep into the savage Huron territory and is complicated by the ongoing French and Indian War. Steve Forrest and Ned Romero star in this adventure. (1:38) July 16

"Your clothes are hanging on the door."

"Your clothes are laying on the floor."

But no matter what I do,
I just can't seem to get through to you.

I like my clothes just where they are—

They are never, ever too far.
The only trouble is to find
The clothes that I have on my mind.

I am missing a pair of pants.
Do you think they were taken by the ants?

You've made my day so very gloomy. I think I'll go back to my little, messy "roomy."

PROGRAMMING

RAGGEDY ANN AND ANDY: A MUSICAL ADVENTURE

The popular rag dolls come to life once again in this fun-filled adventure. While Marcella is asleep, Babette, a new doll, is abducted by a pirate. Raggedy Ann and Andy race against time as they search for Babette.

THE CHIPMUNK ADVENTURE

Alvin, Simon and Theodore are up to their wild antics again—and this time, the Chipettes join them. While Dave is in Europe, the six are challenged to a world-wide hot air balloon race. Little do they know it's being run by a diamond smuggler!

MY FRIEND LIBERTY

Johnny Wise is a 10-year-old daydreamer, bored with school and classroom life—until one day, a giant hand leads him out of the classroom and back in time onto the streets of New York. There, he learns the true meaning of The Statue of Liberty.

WRITE YOUR OWN COMIC

A new miniseries premieres on The Disney Channel on Tuesday, June 14 at 8:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT).

It's Black Beauty, which follows the life of a horse as it is sold from owner to owner. The miniseries is based on Anna Sewell's Black Beauty, one of the most famous animal stories ever written. The book is suited for readers 10 and older. Hansel and Gretel is a film which uses life-like puppets. The movie is based on a fairy tale of the same title, which was first published by the Brothers Grimm. Young readers especially will enjoy this tale. They will also like Babar Comes to America, an animated special featuring characters from the Babar picture books, created by Jean and Laurent de Brunhoff. Dr. Seuss' The Grinch Grinches the Cat in the Hat stars two of the Doctor's characters from his books for youngsters. And for older kids (12 and up), The Red Badge of Courage is adapted from Stephen Crane's novella of the same title. Considered a classic, it's a Civil War story of a young man who learns about cowardice—and courage.

Read, Write, and Draw

Minnie Mouse has a surprise for Mickey's birthday: a ride in an airplane. But the pilot is the wacky Donald Duck, whose flying experience comes right out of a book! What will happen next?

Read the story's beginning, then make up an ending (100 words or less) and draw a picture to illustrate the tale. Send your story to:

"Read, Write, and Draw"
The Disney Channel Magazine
P.O. Box 6439
Burbank, CA 91510-6439

A selection of stories will be read on The Disney Channel by actor Vincent Price or published in The Disney Channel Magazine. (See next page.)

MICKEY'S BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Minnie had a surprise present for Mickey. "It's an airplane ride from Donald Duck's Flying Circus," she told him. "It has just opened at the airport."

Mickey was at the airport early on his birthday.

"Climb right in, yes sir, it's a beautiful day for flying," Donald Duck quacked. "Up, up and away."

The battered old airplane bounced up and down on the runway before slowly climbing into the sky.

Suddenly they were flying upside down! "Gee, what's going on?" Mickey yelled.

Donald rummaged in the cockpit and came up with an old blue book entitled Flying. "Let's see here."

"How long have you been flying?" Mickey asked.

"Three days," Donald said. "But I've read every chapter in the book except the last. That's the chapter...let's look. Oh yes, 'How to Land.'"

This activity is open to children 12 years and under. All submissions become the property of The Disney Channel and cannot be individually acknowledged or returned.

Having a little sister isn't so bad after all—at least that's what our young contributors seem to think. As you can see below, Lisa turned out to be a fun playmate, and in some cases, she helped Janice and Rachel get out of some pretty sticky situations!

SISTERS

It was Friday afternoon and Rachel was looking forward to her date on Saturday with Janice.

"Rachel, dear," her mother said, "I have some errands to do tomorrow. I've called Janice's mother and she said it would be no problem for Lisa to come over, too." Lisa was Rachel's younger sister.

"Oh, Mom," said Rachel. "I don't want her to come. She's such a baby. She'll be in the way."

"You can find things to play all together," her mother

"But, Mom," Rachel said, "It's my play date. It won't be the same with her there."

"Rachel," said her mother, "Lisa is the only sister you've got.''

This Father's Day (June 19), what could make your dad happier than a picture of you in a frame you make yourself!

HERE'S WHAT YOU NEED: cardboard glue cotton fabric (12"X 2") photo of yourself (3 1/2" X 5") ruler scissors cotton balls (about 40) pencil

Frame backing:

Cut out two 8" X 6 1/2" rectangles from the cardboard. Cut from your fabric a piece measuring 12" X 12". Wrap the fabric around one of the cardboard rectangles like a present, making sure one side is smooth and the other side has all the edges glued in place.

Front of frame:

To create the frame's window, take the remaining cardboard rectangle and draw a 2nd rectangle 1 3/4" in from all sides, measuring 4 1/2" X 3". Cut out this inner rectangle. Put the frame on the back side of a piece of fabric measuring 11" X 9".

With a pencil, trace around the inner rectangle (the frame's window). Remove cardboard from fabric. Inside the traced rectangle, draw another rectangle I" in from all sides (Fig. A). Now draw lines in between the two rectangles at each corner. Cut out the smaller rectangle. Then carefully cut into the 4 lines you made in between the two rectangles. Do not cut out the larger rectangle (Fig. B).

Now spread glue over one side of the front of the frame. Stretch cotton balls evenly over the glue and press in place. The cotton should puff up about 1/4" from the frame. Place the cardboard, cotton facing down, on the back of the fabric so the frame's window lines up with the larger rectangle you drew. Fold the fabric tabs tightly over the inside of the frame and glue in place. Now fold the exterior edges of fabric onto the frame and glue in place. Let dry for 10 minutes.

Putting it together:

Glue the front of the frame, cotton side up, to the back of the frame with your photo glued and centered on the frame backing so the picture shows through the opening. Decorate with ribbon, ric rac, buttons or anything else you can think of.

Stand instructions:

Cut out a cardboard triangle 7" X 8" X 4". Trim top and bottom of triangle (Fig. C). Cover with fabric. Make a fold 1" in from the 7" side. Glue the fold vertically to the back of the frame, carefully aligning the bottom of the stand with the bottom of the frame.

Meet the Woodmouse Family

You've never met a family like the Woodmouse Family. So talented...so accomplished... and yet so modest. They're twentyfive of the finest mice ever to take up residence in polite society.

And they're yours exclusively from Franklin Porcelain. Each one is a treasure. An original sculpture in fine imported porcelain, hand-painted to capture not only the detail of the charming Victorian costume, but the nuances of each distinctive little personality as well.

The entire family is the creation of famed British artist Pamela Sampson whose whimsical characters have captured hearts and imaginations around the world.

There's father William, dashing in his formal wedding attire. And mother Celestine, demure and dainty in her flowing bridal gown. Gwyneth is quite the young lady in her pretty pink dress and white straw hat...and Harold is the very picture of mischievous young mousehood in his sailor suit. And duction, and his original paintings command prices as high as $20,000. Now, acclaimed wildlife artist Ron Parker has created an original work of art that not only realistically captures a scene from nature, but also represents the first-ever collector plate by this renowned artist.

On a shimmering "canvas" of fine porcelain, Ron Parker has depicted two captivating, though potentially mischievous, young raccoons. They peer out from the shelter of a hollowed-out tree, eager to explore the world beyond their den.

Entitled "A Curious Pair," this limited edition plate exhibits the brilliant style and attention to detail which have made Ron Parker one of North America's foremost wildlife artists. This extraordinary work will enhance your home or office with warmth and beauty for many years to come.

Adding to the significance of this issue, "A Curious Pair" premieres an important collection of eight plates entitled Nature's Quiet Moments. Each issue will feature a unique Ron Parker original, honoring one of America's best-known wildlife species portrayed in its natural habitat. Each 91/4" plate will be embellished with 23K gold, and each will be hand-numbered on its reverse and accompanied by a samenumbered Certificate of Authenticity
